Link-Belt

Grove promises to unveil some totally new, larger All Terrain cranes, the details of which it is keeping to itself until the show opens. Whatever it is, we have it on good authority that it will be worth stopping by.

Tadano - There are so many reasons to make a stop at the Tadano stand, so make sure you have plenty of time. Even before you look at the specific products, this is not only the first time that all of the acquired brands, Manitex, Nagano, Oil & Steel, PM, Valla and Demag will appear together in North America, but it also marks the completion of the rebranding programme to Tadano. Also, if last year's Bauma is anything to go by, look out for future innovations, new concepts and more.

Link-Belt is in an almost unique situation in that it is the only company manufacturing All Terrains in the USA. This will be the first Conexpo for the 200 tonne/225 ton 225 | AT unveiled in 2024. Avid model collectors will be happy to learn that two new scale models will be on the stand, the 300 | AT All Terrain and the 120 | HT truck crane.

Franna, the fast travel pick & carry crane from Australia, is a blend of All Terrain and Rough Terrain in one unit, handy for full service crane rental companies. You will find the MCT 25 on the Terex Materials stand in the Silver Lot.

Liebherr always puts on a good exhibition, although it is being a tad coy on what it will show, but we do know that it will unveil an all new All Terrain crane, along with other mobiles, with a focus on optimised transportation, new, more advanced assistance and setup systems.

XCMG - The Chinese company is making inroads internationally, and building a market with its hybrid and even all electric cranes - definitely worth a stop.

Zoomlion - Another of the big three Chinese crane manufacturers, Zoomlion will have a selection of its mobile cranes on show, including traditional truck cranes, All Terrains and Rough Terrains... although with such a wide selection of construction equipment, stand space will be at a premium.

Sany - You never know what to expect with Sany, globally it is making an impact with its Rough Terrains and will probably show an RT, truck crane and possibly an All Terrain crane.

Terex Cranes - Rough Terrain cranes are now part of Italian tower crane manufacturer Raimondi. Conexpo is its first outing, so expect to be wowed! It will show its latest Rough Terrain cranes, but more importantly, this is Middle East owned Raimondi's first move into the mobile crane market - expect more.

Dutch spider and pick & carry crane maker Hoeflon will be on the UPEquip stand, while on the smaller end of the market, they are definitely worth a look.

The same applies to archival Jekko from Italy on the Fascan stand - beautiful engineering, well executed.

Broderson - A classic name in the carry deck market they can be found on the Lanco stand, almost certainly alongside a few other mobile crane exhibits.

Altec is appearing for the first time at Conexpo since its acquisition programme got underway, expect to see its latest truck crane and boom trucks on the stand. Lots going on with Altec, so don't miss it.

Elliott - Interesting times at the truck crane and boom truck manufacturer. In December it was acquired by mechanics truck and service crane manufacturer Stellar Industries. It is possible the two companies will be celebrating the deal's completion at the show.

Smiley Lifting Solutions - It sells a range of small pick & carry cranes and a few boom trucks - interesting products worth a look.

Finally, don't forget the articulated loader crane producers, many of which can be found in the Diamond Lot, such as Cormach, which focuses on the heavier end of the market. It has a unique geometry with a wide open elevating base and offers a strong alternative to regular small to mid-size truck cranes for many applications. Others include Fassi on the Fascan stand, Palfinger and Turkish manufacturer World Power.
